Note to seekers. If you’ve been on the journey for a while, you may have encountered spiritualities that seem smooth and clever–a side door out of the human condition. With the right mind shift or change in perspective you can “wake up” to learn that all is well–for those who “get it.” They might have clever phrases like–life is the dancer and you are the dance. They might use specialized terminology and have charismatic teachers.

All well and good, but it’s not engaging with the good news of the gospel. The gospel seems like old hat, but it’s better news that the slick stuff. Let’s take a closer look.

the Father almighty, maker of heaven and earth, of all things visible and invisible.

I believe in one Lord Jesus Christ, the Only Begotten Son of God, born of the Father before all ages. God from God, Light from Light, true God from true God, begotten, not made, consubstantial with the Father; through him all things were made. For us men and for our salvation he came down from heaven, and by the Holy Spirit was incarnate of the Virgin Mary, and became man. For our sake he was crucified under Pontius Pilate, he suffered death and was buried, and rose again on the third day in accordance with the Scriptures. He ascended into heaven and is seated at the right hand of the Father. He will come again in glory to judge the living and the dead and his kingdom will have no end.

I believe in the Holy Spirit, the Lord, the giver of life, who proceeds from the Father and the Son, who with the Father and the Son is adored and glorified, who has spoken through the prophets.

I believe in one, holy, catholic and apostolic Church. I confess one Baptism for the forgiveness of sins and I look forward to the resurrection of the dead and the life of the world to come. Amen."

So first of all, the whole 3 story universe thing (heaven is "up there" hell is "down there") is a side issue. The Nicene creed is still true even if we don't accept the cosmology of the ancient world.

Second, the exact details of what the resurrection was can be bracketed as well. The gospel message is that God became the jaws of life in order to rescue his children. You know…the jaws of life…it's that bulky equipment that fire and rescue teams use to cut and pry open car doors and cut off car roofs etc. in order to rescue people from bad car crashes so that they can be taken to the emergency room at the hospital in time. It's messy and loud and awkward and breaks windows and cuts things open–but it rescues people and gets them to the hospital so that they can be healed.

It's not a perfect analogy, but hopefully the main idea comes across. Our heavenly Father left the comfy cozy serene [insert your spiritual buzzword here] blissful heaven, and became the jaws of life to cut open and expose the lies and demonic forces that trap his children–and to defeat them–even though He was tortured and killed in the process. And if we follow Him, if we follow his Way, our life will be a series of crosses too.

Matthew 16:24-25 (RSV):

> Then Jesus told his disciples, "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me. For whoever would save his life will lose it, and whoever loses his life for my sake will find it."

Luke 6:40 (RSV):

> "A disciple is not above his teacher, but every one when he is fully taught will be like his teacher."

All of that to say that Christian salvation…classically understood… gets to the root of the human condition…it is the God-man (Jesus) entering into the mundane, bloody, dirty, annoying, frustrating, wicked, evil, filled-with-distractions-and-lies, shame-filled, shit-happens world. Jesus became one of us and looked at this reality straight in the eye without flinching. And he outwitted it and defeated it. And through the power of His resurrection we eat his flesh and become part of his body and we complete His sufferings (Cf.

Colossians 1:24) and become part of the redemption of the world.

That is the good news that the Nicene Creed is talking about. That is facing reality, and getting to the root of the human condition. That is the path to true joy.

This, by the way, is why the Maji (the Wise Men in the Christmas story) travelled a long long way to see Jesus. They knew that this was a big freaking deal. The incarnation completely blew the roof off of the wisest wisdom in the world. It's why Simeon–the guy that Mary and Joseph took the baby Jesus to for the presentation in the temple–was focused on the promise of the Holy Spirit that he would see the Messiah before he died.

Anyway…that's what the gospel is about. It's messy and it's real.

All that stuff about following your Bliss or "waking up" to nonduality or whatever. Well okay. Beware of the occult. But at the end of the day all of that stuff is not taking advantage of the good news of the incarnation, the jaws of life that has gotten a hold of the depths of reality and has paved the way for us to move forward as members of Christ's body.

Life is going to crucify me every day. Am I going to recognize it? In the moment? In reflection? In conversation with a trusted person?

What am I going to do about it? Can I change the situation? Ok good. What if I can't? Can I run away? Of course —right into the arms of even more crucifixions.

But God loves me and I don't deserve this. He's been through the same thing. And he's still alive and with me. He's with me in prayer, meditation, scripture, music, the sacraments, fellowship. He is speaking to me all day everyday—I need to remember to listen. To hear. Even if what I hear is nothing. He has never answered the riddle. But that's not what I need anyway. What I need is Love. Love from Someone who doesn't need anything in return. Who is completely and totally Giver & Gift. With no hidden agendas. No manipulative undertones. Not weighed down by burnout and exhaustion and His own issues. I need to hear His love spoken to me in my heart. I need to trust that He is there for me and has total understanding of my state—is closer to it and has more awareness and understanding of it than I do. I can rejoice that the more difficult my circumstances, the easier it is to see and feel both my total dependence on Him AND His total dependability.

All I can do is say—here I am Lord… what's next? And then go about my day, trusting that He will teach me how to listen closer and closer and closer… until all the other voices—shame, blame, guilt, fear, confusion…get quieter and quieter and quieter, until they eventually fade away…

And a poor widow came, and put in two copper coins, which make a penny. And he called his disciples to him, and said to them, “Truly, I say to you, this poor widow has put in more than all those who are contributing to the treasury. For they all contributed out of their abundance; but she out of her poverty has put in everything she had, her whole living.”

James, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes in the Dispersion: Greeting.

Count it all joy, my brethren, when you meet various trials, for you know that the testing of your faith produces steadfastness. And let steadfastness have its full effect, that you may be perfect and complete, lacking in nothing. If any of you lacks wisdom, let him ask God, who gives to all men generously and without reproaching, and it will be given him. But let him ask in faith, with no doubting, for he who doubts is like a wave of the sea that is driven and tossed by the wind. For that person must not suppose that a double-minded man, unstable in all his ways, will receive anything from the Lord. the grass he will pass away. For the sun rises with its scorching heat and withers the grass; its flower falls, and its beauty perishes. So will the rich man fade away in the midst of his pursuits.

Blessed is the man who endures trial, for when he has stood the test he will receive the crown of life which God has promised to those who love him. Let no one say when he is tempted, "I am tempted by God"; for God cannot be tempted with evil and he himself tempts no one; but each person is tempted when he is lured and enticed by his own desire. Then desire when it has conceived gives birth to sin; and sin when it is full-grown brings forth death. Do not be deceived, my beloved brethren. Every good endowment and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of lights with whom there is no variation or shadow due to change. Of his own will he brought us forth by the word of truth that we should be a kind of first fruits of his creatures.

Know this, my beloved brethren. Let every man be quick to hear, slow to speak, slow to anger, for the anger of man does not work the righteousness of God. Therefore put away all filthiness and rank growth of wickedness and receive with meekness the implanted word, which is able to save your souls.

But be doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves. For if anyone is a hearer of the word and not a doer, he is like a man who observes his natural face in a mirror; for he observes himself and goes away and at once forgets what he was like. But he who looks into the perfect law, the law of liberty, and perseveres, being no hearer that forgets but a doer that acts, he shall be blessed in his doing. If anyone thinks he is religious, and does not bridle his tongue but deceives his heart, this man's religion is vain. Religion that is pure and undefiled before God and the Father is this: to visit orphans and widows in their affliction, and to keep oneself unstained from the world.

My brethren, show no partiality as you hold the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory. For if a man with gold rings and in fine clothing comes into your assembly, and a poor man in shabby clothing also comes in, and you pay attention to the one who wears the fine clothing and say, "Have a seat here, please," while you say to the poor man, "Stand there," or, "Sit at my feet," have you not made distinctions among yourselves, and become judges with evil thoughts? God chosen those who are poor in the world to be rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom which he has promised to those who love him? But you have dishonored the poor man. Is it not the rich who oppress you, is it not they who drag you into court? Is it not they who blaspheme the honorable name which was invoked over you?

If you really fulfil the royal law, according to the scripture, “You shall love your neighbor as yourself,” you do well. But if you show partiality, you commit sin, and are convicted by the law as transgressors. For whoever keeps the whole law but fails in one point has become guilty of all of it. For he who said, “Do not commit adultery,” said also, “Do not kill.” If you do not commit adultery but do kill, you have become a transgressor of the law. So speak and so act as those who are to be judged under the law of liberty. For judgment is without mercy to one who has shown no mercy; yet mercy triumphs over judgment.

What does it profit, my brethren, if a man says he has faith but has not works? Can his faith save him? works, is dead. But some one will say, "You have faith and I have works." Show me your faith apart from your works, and I by my works will show you my faith. You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe—and shudder. Do you want to be shown, you shallow man, that faith apart from works is barren? Was not Abraham our father justified by works, when he offered his son Isaac upon the altar? You see that faith was active along with his works, and faith was completed by works, and the scripture was fulfilled which says, "Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness"; and he was called the friend of God. You see that a man is justified by works and not by faith alone. And in the same way was not also Rahab the harlot justified by works when she received the messengers and sent them out another way? For as the body apart from the spirit is dead, so faith apart from works is dead.

Let not many of you become teachers, my brethren, for you know that we who teach shall be judged with greater strictness. For we all make many mistakes, and if any one makes no mistakes in what he says he is a perfect man, able to bridle the whole body also. at the ships also; though they are so great and are driven by strong winds, they are guided by a very small rudder wherever the will of the pilot directs. So the tongue is a little member and boasts of great things. How great a forest is set ablaze by a small fire! And the tongue is a fire. The tongue is an unrighteous world among our members, staining the whole body, setting on fire the cycle of nature, and set on fire by hell. For every kind of beast and bird, of reptile and sea creature, can be tamed and has been tamed by humankind, but no human being can tame the tongue—a restless evil, full of deadly poison. With it we bless the Lord and Father, and with it we curse men, who are made in the likeness of God. From the same mouth come blessing and cursing. My brethren, this ought not to be so. Does a spring pour forth from the same opening fresh water and brackish? Can a fig tree, my brethren, yield olives, or a grapevine figs? No more can salt water yield fresh.

What causes wars, and what causes fightings among you? Is it not your passions that are at war in your members? You desire and do not have; so you kill. And you covet and cannot obtain; so you fight and wage war. You do not have, because you do not ask. You ask and do not receive, because you ask wrongly, to spend it on your passions. Unfaithful creatures! Do you not know that friendship with the world is enmity with God? Therefore whoever wishes to be a friend of the world makes himself an enemy of God. to mourning and your joy to dejection. Humble yourselves before the Lord and he will exalt you.

Do not speak evil against one another, brethren. He that speaks evil against a brother or judges his brother speaks evil against the law and judges the law. But if you judge the law, you are not a doer of the law but a judge. There is one lawgiver and judge, he who is able to save and to destroy. But who are you that you judge your neighbor?

Come now, you who say, “Today or tomorrow we will go into such and such a town and spend a year there and trade and get gain”; whereas you do not know about tomorrow. What is your life? For you are a mist that appears for a little time and then vanishes. Instead you ought to say, “If the Lord wills, we shall live and we shall do this or that.” As it is, you boast in your arrogance. All such boasting is evil. Whoever knows what is right to do and fails to do it, for him it is sin.

Come now, you rich, weep and howl for the miseries that are coming upon you. Your riches have rotted and your garments are moth-eaten. Your gold and silver have rusted, and their rust will be evidence against you and will eat your flesh like fire. You have laid up treasure for the last days. your fields, which you kept back by fraud, cry out; and the cries of the harvesters have reached the ears of the Lord of hosts. You have lived on the earth in luxury and in pleasure; you have fattened your hearts in a day of slaughter. You have condemned, you have killed the righteous man; he does not resist you.

Be patient, therefore, brethren, until the coming of the Lord. Behold, the farmer waits for the precious fruit of the earth, being patient over it until it receives the early and the late rain. You also be patient. Establish your hearts, for the coming of the Lord is at hand. Do not grumble, brethren, against one another, that you may not be judged; behold, the Judge is standing at the doors. As an example of suffering and patience, brethren, take the prophets who spoke in the name of the Lord. Behold, we call those happy who were steadfast. You have heard of the steadfastness of Job, and you have seen the purpose of the Lord, how the Lord is compassionate and merciful.

But above all, my brethren, do not swear, either by heaven or by earth or with any other oath, but let your yes be yes and your no be no, that you may not fall under condemnation.

Is any one among you suffering? Let him pray. Is any cheerful? Let him sing praise. Is any among you sick? Let him call for the elders of the church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord; and the prayer of faith will save the sick man, and the Lord will raise him up; and if he has committed sins, he will be forgiven. Therefore confess your sins to one another, and pray for one another, that you may be healed. The prayer of a righteous man has great power in its effects. Elijah was a man of like nature with ourselves and he prayed fervently that it might not rain, and for three years and six months it did not rain on the earth. Then he prayed again and the heaven gave rain, and the earth brought forth its fruit.

My brethren, if any one among you wanders from the truth and some one brings him back, let him know that whoever brings back a sinner from the error of his way will save his soul from death and will cover a multitude of sins.
